Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 07 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Bright spells and a few wintry showers. Rain overnight.

Today:
Bright spells and a few sleet or snow showers, these becoming lighter during the afternoon and becoming a little less cold. However cloud thickening with rain preceded by hill snow in evening. Light winds. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tonight:
Winds strengthening from the west overnight with gales around the coast by dawn. Outbreaks rain and hill snow spread in by late evening. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
More rain overnight and Thursday morning, becoming quite heavy for a time in the afternoon, brighter for the Hebrides by mid afternoon. Strengthening winds once again and feeling very cold. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A period of very strong winds into Friday will bring back colder conditions with blustery snow showers on Friday and Saturday, winds easing on Saturday. Drier and brighter on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.